

To Whom It May Concern,

I have known Julia for the past four years and she stands out amongst a crowd as a shining example of the type of young person any educator wishes to see. Time and again Julia has proven herself not only an outstanding scholar and leader, but overall well-mannered and kind individual. I am very blessed to have made her acquaintance.

At OLSH Julia's grades are outstanding and speak toward her commendable work ethic, dedication, and ability to rise to the top despite the stiff competition. Julia is a member of NHS where she serves as Vice President and works as a School Ambassador in addition to tutoring and working as a Writing Center Tutor. As a student athlete Julia plays both soccer and track and has excellent time management skills. Julia works hard for herself while still continuing to give back to the OLSH community and student population.

Outside of class Julia continues to serve and represent her school by participating in multiple activities. Julia has been involved in the religious Chi Rho retreat multiple years and is now serving as a leader her senior year. When she was just a sophomore she put love into action by organizing the first ever Mr. OLSH pageant. This event has been running for three years now and gives back to those in need while also creating a lasting and memorable tradition for her school family. Julia also is a member of Young Hands, Yearbook, and the Pro-Life club. All these achievements only begin to prove the point that Julia is a selfless individual who is a bright light in our community.

My interaction with Julia has never been less than heartwarming. Her optimism and responsibility continue to shine in her senior year and I have witnessed her compassion at school, our annual trip to the March for Life in Washington D.C., and our Chi Rho retreat. She quietly leads by example and her quick wit and humor make every room she is in warmer. I strongly recommend Julia Sarnowski not only for her academic merit, but for her extraordinary character. I know she will continue to bring her best work to her future endeavors and continue to lead by example.

Sincerely,
